The local justice worker is a dynamic and wide-reaching program that supports Aboriginal men and women who are involved in the Victorian Justice System.

This could include people facing court, under a corrections order, or those in prison.

The local justice worker is committed to achieving better outcomes for Aboriginal people involved with the Victorian Justice System.

The service is culturally sensitive, respectful, confidential, and able to provide both emotional and practical support to clients.

Aims and Objectives

- Contribute to improved justice outcomes for Aboriginal peoples in the Victorian South West
- Provide help to all Aboriginal people over the age of 18 that are dealing with the justice system
- Support clients when facing court, incarcerated in jail, placed under Community and Parole Orders, or having issues with police
- Give practical help with reducing outstanding fines
- Ensure no Aboriginal member of our local community faces court or the justice system alone

Types of Support

- ✓ Case management
- ✓ Advocacy
- ✓ Referrals to support services
- ✓ Court Support
- ✓ Providing support to access legal advice and cultural connection

Referral Pathway: Referrals can come from Department of Justice or other professionals, or you can call Gunditjmarra on 5559 1234 and ask to speak to the Local Justice Worker or Alternatively pop into the office at 135 Kepler Street Warrnambool to have a Yarn on how we can best support you
